

Across

6. Translates domain names into IP addresses. Uses port 53.
7. Provides unencrypted remote command-line access. Uses TCP port 23.
10. Provides encrypted remote command-line access. Uses TCP port 22.
12. Automatically assigns network addressing information. Uses UDP ports 67-68.
13. Accesses and synchronizes email stored on a server. Uses TCP port 143.
14. Transfers files between computers. Uses TCP ports 20-21.
15. Sends email between mail systems. Uses TCP port 25.
16. Connectionless method that prioritizes speed over guaranteed delivery.
17. Provides shared access to files and printers. Uses TCP port 445.
18. Transfers encrypted web content. Uses TCP port 443.

Down

1. Queries and manages directory information. Uses port 389.
2. Provides legacy naming and communication on local networks. Uses ports 137-139.
3. Provides a graphical remote access to Windows systems. Uses port 3389.
4. Transfers unencrypted web content. Uses TCP port 80.
5. Provides legacy naming and communication on local networks. Uses ports 137-139.
8. Downloads email from a server to a client. Uses TCP port 110.
9. Connection-oriented method that provides reliable, ordered delivery.
11. Provides shared access to files and printers. Uses TCP port 445.